The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 28, 1899.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1898.

IN numbers the books of 1898 fell slightly behind those of 1897. In 1897 we put on record 4928 books. In 1898, 4886 titles appeared in our weekly lists of new publications, making a difference of 42. This difference makes the number of books published in 1898 lower than that of any year since 1894, when our record showed 4484 titles.

The leading books of the year in almost every department came from the other side. In fiction particularly were we debtors. The leading novels were from English authors. Few years in the experience of the book trade had opened more dismally than 1898. The immediate coming of prosperity, positively promised in 1897, not only did not materialize, but, largely owing to the Spanish-American war, the trade published carefully while the people were so largely concerned with the daily news. With the coming of spring, however, business became more hopeful, and the books announced as in course of publication were numerous and promising. Later, the books that were issued related largely to the war or to the newly conquered or annexed territory. They all sold readily, though mostly mere newspaper stuff, hurriedly prepared and illy digested. But in few cases can they be called literature, though they have served as grist to the publishers' mills and have in the end kept the number of books published almost equal with that of 1897. Things went back to a more normal condition after the summer had passed, but the losses of six months could not be made up in three. A perfect rush of books began in October and continued through December, those recorded by us in the last three months being 2058 against the 4886 of the whole year. In December alone we put on record the titles of 1026 books, of which 491 were books actually received at this office, and in the majority of cases entered with a brief description or annotation. The total of books received by us during the year amounted to 2698, making 88 more than in 1897, a fact to be credited first to the steadily improving bibliographical system of our office and then to the great number of new publishers that were a feature of the year—firms or private individuals that published one or two books. By actual count over 250 new names from all over the country were added to our Order List. It was these new names which swelled the totals. Our great publishing houses, by actual count, almost all published less than in 1897.

There were few special features connected with the literature of the year. Novels, as heretofore, took the lead. Historical romances were still in demand, many wooden, colorless volumes finding publishers. Juvenile literature almost in its entirety belongs to the domain of fiction. The books coming under this heading were, as a general thing, as much for grown people as for children's reading. Juvenile fiction seems an exhausted field. Scarcely a book in this department, issued in the past year, possesses a lasting quality. It will take another generation to produce genius of the immortal quality that belonged to "Lewis Carroll." Really notable books by American authors are rare in all the literary departments.

The death of Gladstone and Bismarck led to the publication of several volumes. The year included books not only related to them, but by them, the autobiography of the great German being the noted biography of the year. The losses in the ranks of literature were unusual both here and in Europe. Among the most famous names are William Black, C. L. Dodgson ("Lewis Carroll"), Mary Cowden Clarke, Harold Frederic, Mrs. Lynn Linton, G. M. Ebers, Blanche Willis Howard (Mrs. von Teuffel), Edward Bellamy, Richard Malcolm Johnston, and Maria Louise Pool.

The table which follows gives in classes the figures, approximately, of the book production in this country of 1898 with those of 1897 for comparison. The departments in 1898 run singularly close to those of the preceding year. The number of American novels published in each year was exactly alike, being 358.

The second table, which follows, attempts to show the number of books that were manufactured in the United States in 1898—first, those of American origin; second, those of English or Continental origin; and third, the English works that were imported, bound or in sheets; these three classes comprising the book production of the United States in 1898. This table, like the former one, scarcely claims to be exactly correct, as it is impossible always to trace the history of a work.

The table shows 2908 books by American authors, made, of course, in this country (against 3318 of 1897;) 834 books by English or other foreign authors made here (against 495 of 1897;) and 1144 books or sheets imported (the number in 1897 being 1115). The reprints were the greatest in fiction, amounting to 391 books.

FICTION.

Novels by American writers were plentiful. The majority found a flattering reception and a wide sale. "Gloria Mundi," owing to Harold Frederic's death simultaneously almost with its publication, attracted more attention, probably, than it would have under ordinary circumstances. It is a long step backward from "The Damnation of Theron Ware," and adds nothing to Mr. Frederic's literary reputation. The subject is the decadence, through its vices, of an English ducal family. The narrative has little force or point, and is almost painful reading to those who recall the fresh charm of "Seth's Brother's Wife." "The Adventures of François" shows both the vitality and versatility of its author, Dr. Weir Mitchell. Not so elaborate a work as "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," nor one of so many and varied characters, it is nevertheless a novel of unusual cleverness, offering an original character-study from a scientist's standpoint. The hero, François, by turns thief, juggler, and fencing-master, passes his life in the streets of Paris during the days of the Terror. The rapid movement of the story, the picturesqueness and brightness of its scenes, are really marvellous. The author of "The Descendant," Miss Ellen Glasgow, produced a second novel, "Phases of an Inferior Planet," another story of New York City. Its pessimism is quite depressing, and its views of life rather remarkable for so young and inexperienced a writer. Its redeeming qualities are its witty dialogues and its clever characterizations. "Red Rock" is Thomas Nelson Page's first novel. Its scenes are drawn from life as it seemed in the South after the Civil War. Francis Hopkinson Smith's "Caleb West, Master Diver," draws largely upon his own experience as a lighthouse builder and civil engineer. In "David Harum" we had the only novel of Edward Noyes Westcott, a banker of Central New York, who died before his work was published. David Harum is an old country banker, quaint, dry, and somewhat illiterate, whose odd philosophy and queer stories have delighted many readers. He is a new figure in fiction. Gilbert Parker, who has grown to be looked upon as one of our own authors, though a Canadian by birth, produced in "The Battle of the Strong" one of the notable novels of the year. The scenes are laid in the Islé of Jersey and in France at the close of the eighteenth century, and have a strong historic interest. Frank Richard Stockton added two new works of fiction to the long list of imaginative literature bearing his name — "The Associate Hermits" and "The Girl at Cobhurst." The first book made a far stronger impression than the second, and is extremely funny in Mr. Stockton's very original and ingenious style. "The Celebrity," by Winston Churchill — a new name in literature — was very favorably received. It is merely an episode in which a famous author figures, but is clever and amusing. "The Californians" and "American Wives and English Husbands" are the latest novels of Mrs. Gertrude Atherton. California life and character of a decade or two ago are graphically depicted in the former, and the English husband contrasted with the American in the latter. Life among the "smart" set of New York City is pictured in Mrs. Burton Harrison's "Good Americans," and Richard Harding Davis tells a tale of Tangiers, and of an imaginary dethroned king having his court there, in "The King's Jackal." Romance and startling incidents characterize Molly Elliot Seawell's "The Loves of the Lady Arabella." Two novels by women writers heretofore unknown displayed unusual gifts and were eagerly read: "The Dull Miss Archinard," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick, alternates in its scene between Paris and an English country home, and has a typical art student as its leading character. The second book is "Via Lucis," by Kassandra Vivaria, a pen-name for a young Italian girl. The book, however, is not a translation, but was written in English and first published through an American publisher. Italian middle-class life finds an admirable delineator in the young author. The story is evidently largely autobiographic, and cruelly exposes the heart troubles of a passionate, undisciplined nature. With all the faults of a first novel from an inexperienced writer, it nevertheless shows the hall-marks of genius.

Our older novelists, as represented by William Dean Howells and Henry James, again delighted limited but appreciative audiences. Mr. Howells' "The Story of a Play" is one of the cleverest bits of work he has done. A young journalist is writing a play for a celebrated actor. It is read to him scene by scene, and also to the journalist's wife. The changes produced in the play by the criticisms, and the power of the criticisms upon the writer, who eventually evolves something entirely different from the play as first started, is a capital study of human nature, and most happily managed. Henry James's "In the Cage" is the romance of a telegraph girl in a London postal telegraph office. "The Two Magics," also from his pen, unites two contrasting stories of light and shade, the first being a most gruesome ghost story. The last novel from Maria Louise Pool was "The Red-Bridge Neighborhood," a sordid tale of rural New England. "A Golden Sorrow," a love-tale of St. Augustine, Florida, in the year 1886, is also to be included in her year's work. "Lost Man's Lane," one of Anna Katharine Green's (Mrs. Rohlfs) popular detective stories, relates a second exciting episode in the life of "Amelia Butterworth," the heroine of "That Affair Next Door." One breathes a specially refined atmosphere in Mrs. Helen Choate Prince's "At the Sign of the Silver Crescent," Mrs. Burnham's "A Great Love," Eliza Orne White's 'A Lover of Truth," and Arlo Bates's "The Puritans," all charming novels by New England writers.

Novels of adventure were almost as popular as in 1897. Those by our own writers were not confined to American scenes, the novels abounding with old-world heroes and old-world surroundings. Those that we now recall we give without any consideration of their merits: "The Continental Dragoon," an historical love-story of New York State in the Revolutionary War, by Robert Neilson Stephens; "In the Sargasso Sea," by T. Allibone Janvier; "Latitude 19°," a romance of the West Indies in the year 1820, by Mrs. Schuyler Crowninshield; "A Man-at-Arms," by Clinton Scollard, an Italian romance of the fourteenth century; "A Trooper of the Empress," a story of South Africa and of the present, and "Bobbie McDuff," both by Clinton Ross; Altsheler's "A Herald of the West"; Mrs. Sheppard Stevens' "I am the King"; "A Sister of Evangeline," by C. G. Douglas Roberts, relating to the deporting of the Acadians of Grande Pré in 1755; "The Count's Snuff-Box," a romance of Washington and Buzzard's Bay during the War of 1812, by G. R. R. Rivers; "The Gospel Writ in Steel," by Arthur Paterson, a story of the Civil War; "For Love of Country," a story of land and sea in the days of the Revolution, by Cyrus Townsend Brady; "The King's Henchman," a sixteenth-century chronicle brought to light and edited by W. H. Johnson; "Hassan, a Fellah," a romance of Palestine, by Henry Gillman; "In Kings' Houses," a romance of the days of Queen Anne, by Mrs. J. C. R. Dorr; "Señorita Montenar," by Archer Philip Crouch, telling the story of the Cuban independence, beginning in the year 1818; "Ashes of Empire," a story of the siege of Paris, by Robert W. Chambers; "Across the Salt Seas," a romance of the War of Succession, by J. Bloundelle Burton, and "The Fifth of November," by C. S. Bentley and F. Kimball Scribner, introducing Guy Fawkes and other noted historical characters of the times of the Stuarts.

Still to be mentioned from American novelists are: Edward Fawcett's "New York"; "The Black Curtain," by Mrs. Flora Haines Loughead; "At You-All's House," by James Newton Baskett; "A Puritan Wooing," by Frank S. Child; "A Bride of Japan," by W. Carlton Dawe; "The Durket Sperret," by Sarah Barnwell Elliott; "Madam of the Ivies," by Elizabeth Phipps Train; "The Uncalled," by Paul Laurence Dunbar; "The General Manager's Story," by Herbert Elliott Hamblen; "A Wounded Name," by Charles King; "Rembrandt," by Walter Cranston Larned; "The Money Captain," by Will Payne; "The Judge," by Mrs. E. W. Peattie; "The Waters of Caney Fork," by Opie P. Read; "Priscilla's Love-Story," by Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford; "On the Winning Side," by Mrs. Jeannette Walworth; "A Pedigree in Pawn," by Arthur H. Veysey; "It was Marlowe," by W. G. Zeigler; "Her Ladyship's Elephant," by David Dwight Wells, and "A Champion in the Seventies," by Edith A. Barnett.

The best examples of the American short story are embraced under the title "Old Chester Tales," by Mrs. Margaret Deland. This volume met with unusual popularity. The stories deal with life in an old town of Pennsylvania and introduce Dr. Lavendar again, one of the author's finest creations. "Madame Butterfly" stands for a collection of Japanese stories based upon the domestic life of Japan as it comes in touch with the foreign residents. John Luther Long, the author, presents many exquisite sketches, amusing and pathetic and at times tragical. He worked in a new field, a unique interest investing his dainty volume with its pretty, artistic cover of cherry-blossoms design. Stephen Crane wrote "The Open Boat, and Other Tales of Adventure"; Bret Harte, "Tales of Trail and Town"; David Gray, "Gallops," stories dealing with life in the hunting field; "Tales of the Home Folks in Peace and War," by Joel Chandler Harris ("Uncle Remus"), embrace character studies of the South and episodes of life during the war and just after it. Southern life is also the inspiration of Paul Laurence Dunbar's "Folks from Dixie"; "Southern Stories," by George Cary Eggleston and "Moriah's Mourning, and Other Half-Hour Sketches," by Ruth McEnery Stuart. Stories of the sea are told in "More Cargoes," by W. W. Jacobs, author of "Many Cargoes." New England, a fertile field for the literary artist, suggested "Boston Neighbours in Town and Out," by Agnes Blake Poor, and "Dumb Fox-glove, and Other Stories," by Annie Trumbull Slosson. "Tales of the City Room," by Elizabeth G. Jordan, invade the sacred precincts of the editorial room of a great "daily"; "Out of Mulberry Street" are studies by Jacob A. Riis of tenement life in New York City, drawn with his usual true and sympathetic touch.

Still other volumes of American short stories were "The Man Who Outlived Himself," by Albion W. Tourgee; "Frontier Stories," by Cy Warman; "War," in tales from M'Clure's; "Cornell Stories," by James G. Sanderson; "From the Other Side," by H. B. Fuller ("Stanton Page"); Paul L. Ford's "Tattle Tales of Cupid"; "The Heart of Toil," by Alice French ("Octave Thanet"); "The Haunts of Men," by Robert W. Chambers; "The Hundred, and Other Stories," by Gertrude Hall, and "The Imported Bridegroom," and other stories of the New York Ghetto, by Abraham Cahan.

The leading English novels found publishers here or were imported. The two works that have excited warm discussion, and the most opposite criticisms wherever the English language is spoken, were Mrs. Humphry Ward's "Helbeck of Bannisdale" and George Moore's "Evelyn Innes." They are both eminently readable, showing great care and thought in the writing. They both seem to possess an element of permanency which places them among the best their authors have produced. Mrs. Ward's judicial fairness in depicting the conflict of Catholicism and agnosticism evinces exceptional intellectual qualities in a woman. Mr. Moore's novel is one of the most forceful studies of the sensuous influences of music we have read in some time. "The Forest Lovers" made an instant and unquestioned success. Delightfully romantic and poetic in the adventures of its hero and heroine, its fresh, charming style won favor with all who read it. Maurice Hewlett, the author, made through "The Forest Lovers" his first appearance in the field of fiction. A second pronounced success of 1898 by an English writer, and also a first novel, is Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler's "Concerning Isabel Carnaby." The plot is not new, dealing with the quarrels of a pair of lovers, badly matched, while incidentally is described an English circle of Methodists or Nonconformists most lovingly and appreciatively. But the author's strength is in her dialogue and in her delineation of character. To these she brings a flow of wit and humor, so unflagging as to be perfectly amazing. Indeed, one is in danger of mental indigestion from a repletion of good things. Theodore Watts-Dunton's "Aylwin" attracted special attention. His position as one of the critics of The Athenæum, and his long association with Tennyson, Browning, Rossetti, William Morris, and other notable men of the century, some of whom he introduces in his novel, under thin disguises, made a strong appeal to the curiosity and interest of the reading public. Richard Le Gallienne was more than usually vague and pessimistic in "The Romance of Zion Chapel," an unflattering picture of Methodism. His dainty style and epigrammatic cleverness, however, carried the book. "Poor Human Nature," by Elizabeth Godfrey, deals with the love of a tenor and a soprano of a German opera company devoted to the production of Wagner's operas; it is delightfully imbued with the author's sincere love of music, and represents a new novelist. Gissing's "The Town Traveller" was very bright and amusing, the very opposite, in fact, to "The Whirlpool," one of the most depressing of this year's novels. "Her Memory," a refined story of English life, comes from "Maarten Maartens," who, in spite of his Dutch name and antecedents, writes in English, his real name being J. M. W. Van der Poorten Schwartz. Edward F. Benson's "The Vintage" is a romance of the Greek war of independence of 1820; "The Broom of the War God" is based upon the recent war of Greece and Turkey. It is from the pen of Henry Noel Brailsford. Sir Walter Besant is to be credited with "The Changeling"; Baring-Gould with "Bladys Stewponey." Anthony Hope wrote "Simon Dale" and "Rupert of Hentzau," the latter a sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda," but in no way equal to it in charm and spontaneity. Stanley Weyman's books were "The Castle Inn" and "Shrewsbury," both English historical romances. "The Pride of Jennico" is one of the notable novels of the early part of 1898. It is a spirited story of adventure of the eighteenth century written by Agnes and Egerton Castle. Henry Seton Merriman's "Roden's Corner" touches upon certain forms of corruption prevalent in English business and financial methods.

The additions to well-known libraries of fiction are most interesting to the confirmed novel reader. They include many most charming works. The new numbers of special note in Appleton's Town and Country Library were T. Gallon's "A Prince of Mischance" and "Dicky Monteith"; "The Looms of Time," by Mrs. Hugh Fraser; "The Incidental Bishop," by Grant Allen; "A Forgotten Sin" and "The Impediment," by Dorothea Gerard; "A Passionate Pilgrim," by Percy White; "Sunset," by Beatrice Whitby; "The Widower," by W. E. Norris; "The Lust of Hate," by Guy Boothby; "This Little World," by David Christie Murray; "The Millionaires," by Frank Frankfort Moore; "The Queen's Cup," by G. A. Henty; "The Scourge of God," by J. Bloundelle Burton; "Materfamilias," by Mrs. Ada Cambridge Cross; "Torn Sails," by Allen Raine; "The Lake of Wine," by Bernard Capes; "A Fiery Ordeal," by Mrs. Jessie Fraser Couvreur ("Tasma"), and "John of Strathbourne," by R. D. Chetwode. Among favorite additions to Lippincott's Select Novels Series may be quoted "In the Shadow of the Three," by Blanche Loftus Tottenham; "Poor Max," by Mrs. Mannington Caffyn ("Iota"), and "Mrs. Balmaine's Past," by Mrs. Bertha M. Croker. The Hudson Library was increased by "Wheat in the Ear," by "Alien"; "The Confessions of Stephen Whapshare," by Emma Brooke, and "As Having Nothing," by Hester Caldwell Oakley, an American author, we believe, though quoted here for convenience. "Wild Eelin," the last published story of William Black, is rich in descriptions of Scottish scenery. Along with this, other novels that were in good demand from English pens are Le Queux's "Scribes and Pharisees," Rosa Nouchette Carey's "Mollie's Prince," "The Londoners," by Robert S. Hichens; "Peggy of the Bartons," by Mrs. Bertha M. Croker; "Young Blood," by Ernest W. Hornung; "The World's Rough Hand," by H. Phelps Whitmarsh; "The Fatal Gift," by Frank Frankfort Moore; "The Crook of the Bough," by Mrs. Henry Norman (Ménie Muriel Dowie); "By Order of the Magistrate," by W. Pett Ridge; "A Valuable Life," by Adeline Sergeant; "John Gilbert, Yeoman," by R. G. Soans; "The Duenna of a Genius," by M. E. Francis; "The Standard-Bearer" and "The Red Axe," by S. R. Crockett; "The Gunrunner," by Bertram Mitford; "John Splendid," by Neil Munro; "The Lady of Castell March," by Owen Rhoscomyl; "The Potentate," by Frances Forbes Robertson, and "Fighting for Favour," by W. G. Tarbets.

The English short story grows in popularity. The twelve stories by Rudyard Kipling in "The Day's Work" have been awarded unstinted praise. The volume has taken the lead in best-selling books. Dr. Watson's ("Ian Maclaren") "Afterwards, and Other Stories" represent some of the best efforts of his genius. "King Circumstance," by Edwin Pugh, is a volume of short and rather sad stories of English home and country life. "Life is Life, and Other Tales and Episodes" is the first published volume of an English girl, Miss Gwendoline Keats, who masqueraded under the pseudonym of "Zack." Devonshire peasant life finds pessimistic representation through these stories. "Tales of Unrest," by Joseph Conrad; "Dreamers of the Ghetto," by Israel Zangwill, and "A Creel of Irish Stories," by Jane Barlow, about complete the list of notable English fiction.

The translations in fiction from foreign languages were rather meagre considering the very large Continental output. "The Head of the Family," just finished by Alphonse Daudet before his death, is the most important novel published in this country from the French. The book appeared in England under the title of "The Bread-Winner," which appears to better describe it than "The Head of the Family." But the similarity of the title with "The Bread-Winners" of American fame caused the first title to be discarded. It is a story of French domestic life with the struggle with poverty, and is lacking in some of the attractive qualities of Daudet's earlier work. Paul Bourget's "Antigone" and "The Disciple" found translators. "Antigone" is a series of fanciful "portraits of women"; "The Disciple" is aimed at the methods of modern scientists and is scathing. Also from the French are Marie-Henri Beyle's "Red and Black," a chronicle of the nineteenth century; Madame Gay's "Marie de Mancini," a romantic episode of the early days of Louis XIV.; "The Terror," a romance of the French Revolution, by Felix Gras; "The Disaster," by Paul and Victor Margueritte, the story of the defeat of the French in the Franco-Prussian war; "The Red Lily," by Anatole France, and "Paris," the concluding volume of Zola's trilogy of which "Lourdes" and "Rome" were the first and second volumes. German fiction is only represented by a few works: "Arachne," the last romance of Georg Ebers; Lola Kirschner's "The Story of a Genius," Sudermann's "Regina" and Voss's "The New God." This is a story of the days of Tiberius and is dressed in the livery of the Odd Number Series. In Italian fiction we have only to note two novels of D'Annunzio—"The Intruder" and "The Maidens of the Rocks." From the Hungarian three of Maurus Jókai's stirring novels appeared in English. They were "The Lion of Janina," "Midst the Wild Carpathians," and "The Nameless Castle." "Niobe" is from the Norwegian of Jonas Kirkwood Lie, "Meir Ezofovitch" from the Polish of Eliza Orzeszko, "The Story of Gösta Berling" from the Swedish of Selma Lagerlöf, and "Maria Felicia" from the Bohemian of Caroline Svetla. The little series entitled Stories from Foreign Authors embraced interesting translations put forth under the sub-titles "German," "Spanish," "Italian," "Russian," "Polish, Greek, Belgian, Hungarian" and "Scandinavian." Each volume contained stories of representative novelists.

BIOGRAPHY AND MEMOIRS.

The revived interest in Benjamin Franklin is the only striking feature in American biography of 1898. From a number of volumes written for young people and old we select as best worth recalling "The True Benjamin Franklin," by Sydney G. Fisher, a vigorous and authentic portrait of this really great man, and "Benjamin Franklin, Printer, Statesman, Philosopher, and Practical Citizen, 1706–1790," by Edward Robins, the first issue of a new series—American Men of Energy—and a composite picture of fresh interest. A sequel to "The Itinerary of the Revolution (1775–1783)," published in 1892, was offered in W. Spohn Baker's "Washington after the Revolution, 1784–1799," a compilation of letters referring to Washington's personal matters and a valuable treasure hitherto not at the disposal of the public. Another life was written of "Ulysses S. Grant," by Hamlin Garland, who claims that it is the first personal life of the great commander. In the Great Educators Series was issued "Horace Mann and the Common School Revival in the United States," by Burke Aaron Hinsdale, which tells simply and clearly the facts of this famous educator.

"Cheerful Yesterdays" are chapters from the life of Thomas Wentworth Higginson; Admiral Franklin tells of his career in "Memories of a Rear-Admiral," the narrative covering more than fifty years of service in the American Navy. "The Life of David Dudley Field," by his brother, Dr. Field, has for its subject one of our greatest lawyers and reformers. "Early Letters of George William Curtis to John S. Dwight" relate to Brook Farm and Concord and men Mr. Curtis met in his youth who afterwards became famous. "The Life and Letters of Paul the Apostle" belongs to religious biography and is a scholarly work of great beauty by Dr. Lyman Abbott.

Other American biographies of the year whose story is told by the title are: "Hawaii's Story, by Hawaii's Queen"; "Memoirs and Letters of James Kent, L.L.D.," late Chancellor of the State of New York; "Eugene Field in His Home," by Ida Comstock Below; "Charles Carleton Coffin, War Correspondent, Traveller, Author, Statesman," by Dr. W. Elliott Griffis; "Passages from the Correspondence and other papers of Rufus W. Griswold"; "American Bookmen," by M. A. De Wolfe Howe; "Jerome Savonarola," by the Rev. J. L. O'Neil; "The Life of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, 1737–1832," by Kate Mason Rowland; "Life and Letters of Thomas Kilby Smith," by Walter G. Smith; "Eighty Years and More (1815–1897)," being reminiscences of Elizabeth Cady Stanton; Ida Husted Harper's "Life and Work of Susan B. Anthony"; two lives of Frances E. Willard; and "Samuel E. Sewall," a memoir by Nina Moore Tiffany.

A year that reported the deaths of men as great and famous as Gladstone and Bismarck necessarily gave forth literature relating to them. From English sources the best biography of Gladstone was Justin McCarthy's "The Story of Gladstone's Life," published previous to 1897, but of which a new revised and enlarged edition carrying the narrative down to the great statesman's death was issued after his death; "Gladstone, the Man," a non-political biography by D. Williamson, treats entirely of his private life; "Mr. Gladstone," a monograph, by Sir E. W. Hamilton, describes, by one who knew him closely for nearly forty years, some of his personal and mental characteristics; "William Ewart Gladstone," a volume for which the material was gathered some years ago, was wholly revised before its publication. Mr. James Bryce makes through its pages a frank analysis of Mr. Gladstone's character.

"The Life of Henry Drummond," by his intimate friend, Dr. George Adam Smith, appeals to the thousands of readers who were fascinated with his book, "The Greatest Thing in the World." "Newman Hall's Autobiography" introduces us to many men of distinction in the past and present. Heroes of the Reformation is a new series that found reprinting here. Its first number was "Martin Luther," by Dr. H. Eyster Jacobs; its second, "Philip Melancthon," by Dr. James W. Richard. The volume of the year in the Heroes of the Nations Series was Stanley Lane Poole's "Saladin and the Fall of the Kingdom of Jerusalem." Character-studies of eminent Englishmen, illustrated with amusing and pointed anecdotes, predominate in the "Collections and Recollections" of G. W. E. Russell. The biographical and critical study of "Christina Rossetti," by H. T. Mackenzie Bell, gives a review of her life and an estimate of her works. "Letters of Dante Gabriel Rossetti to William Allingham, 1854–1870," is an important contribution to the history of the pre-Raphaelite group. Mr. Spurgeon published the first part of his autobiography. A correspondence, now published in full for the first time, between "Robert Burns and Mrs. Dunlop" has an unusual literary and personal interest. The same may be said of the letters which make up "Charles Lamb and the Lloyds." David Wilson, in a thick volume—"Mr. Froude and Carlyle"—strongly condemns the methods of the Sage's biographer. "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales" covers the career of the prince—his birth, education, travels, marriage, etc. "John Ruskin" as a social reformer was studied by John Atkinson Hobson. "Paul Kruger and His Times," by Francis Reginald Statham, discusses a many-sided and famous man. The new Biographical Edition now being published of the works of Thackeray approaches as nearly in its biographical introductions by his daughter, Anne Ritchie, to a biography of the author of "Vanity Fair" as we have so far been able to obtain. With histories of the writing of his novels delightful personal details are intermingled.

Importations were made in small editions of the following important English biographies: New volumes in the Famous Scots Series were "Robert Fergusson," by A. B. Grosart; "William Dunbar," by Oliphant Smeaton; "David Hume," by Henry Calderwood, and "Mungo Park," by T. Banks Maclachlan. "John Bright," by C. A. Vince, appeared in The Victorian Era Series. "Sir James Young Simpson and Chloroform (1811–1870)," by H. Laing Gordon, was the third volume in the Masters of Medicine Series. To the Foreign Statesmen Series, "Mirabeau," by Paul Ferdinand Willert, was added. Still to be named were Henderson's "Stonewall Jackson and the American Civil War" (2 v.); Sidney Lee's "Life of Shakespeare"; Barry O'Brien's "Life of Charles Stewart Parnell"; Forbes' "Life of Napoleon III."; "The Life and Times of Cardinal Wiseman," by Wilfrid Ward (2 v.); Henry B. Irving's "Life of Judge Jeffreys"; "The Cheverels of Cheverel Manor," by Lady Newdigate-Newdegate; "W. G. Wills, Dramatist and Painter," by Freeman Wills; "Admiral Duncan," by the Earl of Camperdown; "Memoirs of a Highland Lady," the autobiography of Elizabeth Grant of Rothiemurchus; and the life and correspondence of "George Thomson, the Friend of Burns," by J. Cuthbert Hadden.

An unflattering picture of the great German Chancellor was taken from the French of Jules Hoche. It is called "The Real Bismarck." Likewise from the French came a biography of "Alphonse Daudet," by his son Léon; the memoirs of the Chevalier de Pontgibaud, under the title "A French Volunteer of the War of Independence," and "The Letters of Victor Hugo" from exile and after the fall of the Empire.

Just at the close of the year we received "Bismarck the Man and Statesman" (2 v.), being the reflections and reminiscences of Otto, Prince von Bismarck, written and dictated by himself after his retirement from office. This translation, made under great pressure, is excellent. It is taken from the German, of course, and stands for the leading biography of 1898. Busch's "Bismarck" (2 v.), an almost equally important work, belongs to the earlier months of the year. Ferdinand Sonnenburg's "Bismarck" also found translation. Leudet's "Emperor of Germany" and Max Müller's "Auld Lang Syne" conclude notable works of this class.

HISTORY.

Historical works from American writers relate largely to our war with Spain, as their titles denote. Among the best were: "A Short History of the War with Spain," by Marrion Wilcox; "History of the Spanish-American War," by Henry Watterson; "Our Navy in the War with Spain," by J. R. Spears; "The War with Spain," by Charles Morris; "The Santiago Campaign, 1898," by General Joseph Wheeler; "The Fall of Santiago," by T. J. Vivian; and "The Cuban and Porto Rican Campaigns," by Richard Harding Davis. In line with these are: "Four Centuries of Spanish Rule in Cuba," by Italo Emilio Canini; "The Spaniard in History," by Rev. James C. Fernald; "The Establishment of Spanish Rule in America," by Bernard Moses; and "The Spanish Revolution, 1868–1875," by E. H. Strobel.

Outside of this hurriedly prepared and necessarily undigested literature but few important works in this department claim attention. Senator Lodge's "Story of the Revolution," which charmed so many readers in its course through Scribner's Magazine, from its fresh points of view and its delightful style, appeared in book form during the holiday season, with a wealth of historic illustration. An unusual interest attaches to Dr. Henry Clay Trumbull's "War Memories of an Army Chaplain." It tells of a long and varied experience with the men in the ranks during the Civil War, and is a sad and pathetic record, illumined by thrilling deeds of bravery and patriotism. "Reminicences of the Old Navy," by Edgar Stanton Maclay; Hezekiah Butterworth's "South America," Mrs. Archibald Dixon's "The True History of the Missouri Compromise and its Repeal," Moses M. Granger's "Washington vs. Jefferson," and "The Underground Railroad from Slavery to Freedom," by Wilbur H. Siebert, complete the present enumeration. Charles A. Dana's "Recollections of the Civil War," a fascinating volume, also belongs here.

An English journalist, G. W. Steevens, is to be credited with one of the most delightful volumes on recent history-making to the Soudan, entitled "With Kitchener to Khartum." Mr. Steevens produced two other volumes during the year which are more than half-way between history and description, leaning largely to the latter subject; but we prefer to quote them here with his other work. Early in the year he published "With the Conquering Turk," and later "Egypt in 1898." "China in Transformation," while it simply aims to give the general reader an account of the present condition of China, is a very excellent piece of work based upon actual observation. The author is Archibald Ross Colquhoun. The new volumes in The Story of the Nations Series were "Modern France, 1789–1895," by André Lebon, and "The Franks" from their origin as a confederacy to the establishment of the kingdom of France and the German Empire, by Louis Sergeant. In the Story of the Empire Series, a new series of small books devoted to the rise of Great Britain's wealth and power throughout the world, were issued "The Rise of an Empire," by Sir Walter Besant; "The Story of India," by Demetrius Boulger; "The Story of Australia," by Flora L. Shaw; and "The Story of Canada," by Howard Angus Kennedy. "The Romance of the House of Savoy, 1003–1519" (2 v.), by Alethea Wiel, is delightfully personal and anecdotal.

Importations were made in small quantities of the following valuable English works: "The Egyptian Soudan," by H. S. L. Alford and W. D. Sword; "Sirdar and Khalifa," by Bennet G. Burleigh; "Fighting the Matabele," by J. Chalmers; "Russia's Sea Power Past and Present," by Sir G. S. Clarke; volume 2 of Clowes's "History of the Royal Navy"; Corbett's "Drake and the Tudor Navy" (2 v.); Harrisse's "Diplomatic History of America"; Sir Richard Temple's "A Bird's-eye View of Picturesque India"; W. J. Stillman's "The Union of Italy, 1815–1895"; "The Story of the Malakand Field Force," by Winston L. S. Churchill; "Africa in the Nineteenth Century," by Edgar Sanderson; and "All the World's Fighting Ships," by F. T. Jane.

Edmond Demoulins' "Anglo-Saxon Superiority" was translated from the tenth French edition. Also from the French came two additional volumes from the prolific pen of Imbert de Saint-Amand—"Napoleon III. and His Court" and "The Court of the Second Empire." An additional volume was added to Sybel's "Founding of the German Empire by William I.," supposed to have been completed with the sixth. This was taken from the German by Helene S. White.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

Our new colonial possessions were the subjects of numerous volumes of more or less merit. The additions to American literature are chiefly "Yesterdays in the Philippines," by Joseph Earle Stevens, whose information was gained through a two years' residence in Manila; "The Story of the Philippines," by Murat Halstead; "The Philippine Islands and Their People," by Dean C. Worcester, a record of personal observation and experience, and from an English writer, we believe, but quoted here for convenience; "Manila and the Philippines," by Margherita Arlina Hamm, also based on the author's personal experience. "Commercial Cuba" is a most valuable book for business men, rich in statistics, illustrations, maps, and plans, by W. J. Clarke; then there is "Cuba and Porto Rico," by Robert T. Hill; "The Story of Beautiful Porto Rico," by C. H. Rector; and "Cuba at a Glance," by Emma B. Kaufman and Annie O'Hagan; and Davey's "Cuba, Past and Present" (an importation). "Vacation Days in Hawaii and Japan," by C. M. Taylor, Jr., and "Hawaii and a Revolution," by Mary H. Krout, give information about another recent acquisition. Grover Flint's "Marching with Gomez" gives the fleeting impressions of a newpaper correspondent. Other books of kindred topics are "A Note-book in Northern Spain," by Archer M. Huntington; "A Corner of Spain," by Mrs. Miriam Coles Harris, the author of "Rutledge;" and "De Soto and His Men in the Land of Florida," by Grace King.

Mexico of to-day is the subject of Charles Fletcher Lummis's "The Awakening of a Nation"; and Alaska was studied by Harry De Windt in a work called "Through the Gold Fields of Alaska to Behring Straits," by Alice Palmer Henderson in "The Rainbow's End—Alaska," and by A. P. Swineford, ex-Governor of Alaska, in "Alaska, its History, Climate, and Natural Resources," a work of some scope and considerable usefulness.

Gossipy works with a good basis of information are Mrs. J. King Van Rensselaer's "The Goede Vrouw of Mana-ha-ta at Home and in Society," covering the period from 1609 to 1760; "Historic Homes of the Southwest Mountains, Va.," by E. C. Mead, describing old houses belonging to once famous people; "Some Colonial Mansions and Those Who Lived in Them," edited by Thomas Allen Glenn, being the first volume of a work of three volumes to be devoted to well-known American families and their ancestors, and "Where Ghosts Walk," historical and literary reminiscences that will forever cling to certain places, written in a very taking style by "Marion Harland" (Mrs. Terhune).

A great literary interest invests Francis Marion Crawford's "Ave Roma Immortalis." Rarely has the romance of the Eternal City been so delightfully served to cultured readers. "The Isles and Shrines of Greece" comes also from a man of broad culture, the Rev. S. J. Barrows. The present and past glories of Greece find most sympathetic and scholarly description. Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood, who seems to have known everybody in the world, and to have been all over it, gave permanent shape to her reminiscences in "Here, There, and Everywhere." Other works to be named are: Charles A. Dana's "Eastern Journeys," the Rev. Ja. S. Gale's "Korean Sketches," the Rev. George H. Hepworth's "Through Armenia on Horseback," Robert E. Peary's "Northward Over the Great Ice," Agnes Replier's "Philadelphia," and Hugh L. Willoughby's "Across the Everglades."

"The Land of Contrasts" is a Briton's view of his American kin, by James Fullarton Muirhead and a most clever readable book. While not ignoring our defects, the writer's chief aim is to dwell upon those features of American civilization in which it seems to him John Bull may learn from Brother Jonathan. Other works from English pens mostly imported in small editions were Sir Walter Besant's "South London," a complemental volume to the author's "London" and "Westminster"; "The Land of the Pigmies," by Captain Guy Burrows, in the service of the Congo Free State; "With Ski and Sledge Over Arctic Glaciers," by Sir W. Martin Conway, an appendix to "The First Crossing of Spitzbergen," published in 1897; Sven Hedin's "Through Asia" (2 v.), Lionel Decle's "Three Years in Savage Africa," Henry M. Stanley's "Through South Africa," being letters written in 1897 from Bulawayo, Johannesburg, and Pretoria; Merewether's "A Tour Through the Famine Districts of India," a journalistic account of personal investigation; "Through China with a Camera" depicts with pen and kodak the present Celestial Kingdom, John Thompson being the author. A unique journey by a woman is the subject of Ella C. Sykes's "Through Persia on a Side-Saddle." Mr. Landor's explorations of Southern Tibet, his capture, imprisonment, and torture, find graphic description "In the Forbidden Land" (2 v.). Another eventful journey to the same country is M. S. Wellby's "Through Unknown Tibet." Add to these H. Warrington-Smith's "Five Years in Siam, from 1891 to 1896," Herbert Vivian's "Servia, the Poor Man's Paradise," R. A. H. Beckford-Smith's "Cretan Sketches," Fitzgerald's "Travels in the Coast-lands of British East Africa," and from the French Huc's "Travels in Tartary, Thibet, and China," Lachambre's and Machuron's "Andrée's Balloon Expedition in Search of the North Pole," the Prince Henri D'Orléans' "From Tonkin to India," and from the Norwegian Astrup's "With Peary Near the Pole."

LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY.

This department is rich in helpful book studies of the literature of various countries and periods, bibliographies, manuals, etc. "Worldly Ways and Byways" was among the few original works in this line that received very favorable notice. The shrewd, witty papers which the title covers first appeared in the New York Evening Post. They cleverly hit American life and manners. The author, Eliot Gregory, wrote under the pseudonym of "An Idler." Hamilton Wright Mabie's "Essays on Work and Culture" and John Jay Chapman's "Emerson and Other Essays" were also popular volumes with readers of intelligence and refinement. New studies of nature are represented by Bradford Torrey's "A World of Green Hills" and Dr. C. Conrad Abbott's "Clear Skies and Cloudy." "A Century of French Fiction" was written about by Benjamin W. Wells; and "An Introduction to American Literature," prepared by H. Spackman Pancoast. "An introduction to the Study of the Renaissance" is the work of Lilian F. Field; "How to Study Shakespeare" comes from W. H. Fleming; and "Glimpses of Modern German Culture," by Kuno Francke, consists of papers originally published in The Nation, The Bookman, and other journals.

"Elements of Literary Criticism," by C. F. Johnson, "Principles and Methods of Literary Criticism," by Lorenzo Sears, "Social Ideals in English Letters," by Vida Dutton Scudder, and "Music and Poetry," by Sidney Lanier, are all valuable manuals for the literary student. Essays are embraced in Mellen Chamberlain's "John Adams, the Statesman of the American Revolution" and Leon H. Vincent's "The Bibliotaph and Other People." Both practical and with a charming literary quality is Ellwanger's "Meditations on Gout." "Facts About Book Worms" relates to the real book worm that devours books, written by Rev. J. F. L. O'Conor. Excellent works of reference for the literary delver were published under the following titles: "The Century Atlas of the World," prepared under the superintendence of B. E. Smith; "The Bookman Literary Yearbook, 1898," edited by James Macarthur; "Chambers's Biographical Dictionary"; "The Novels of 1897," compiled by W. M. Griswold; "The Annual Literary Index, 1897," by W. I. Fletcher and R. R. Bowker; "List of French Fiction," by Mme. Sophie Cornu and W. Beer; "Cumulative Index to a Selected List of Periodicals, 1897," "Trade List Annual, 1898," "Annual American Catalogue, 1897," and A. Growoll's "Book-Trade Bibliography in the United States in the 19th Century." And from English sources "English Catalogue of Books for 1897," and T. B. Harbottle's "Dictionary of Classical quotations."

To the Literatures of the World Series several admirable literary histories were added, chiefly from English writers, such as Garnett's "History of Italian Literature," Gosse's "Short History of Modern English Literature," and James Fitzmaurice Kelly's "History of Spanish Literature." In line with these are Saintsbury's "Short History of English Literature"; "The Later Renaissance," by David Hannay, in Periods of European Literature; and "A Study of English Prose," by J. Scott Clark. "A Literary History of India," the initial volume in The Library of Literary History deals with the intellectual growth of India, and is the work of the distinguished scholar, Robert W. Frazer. Essays on a variety of subjects are embraced in Leslie Stephen's "Studies of a Biographer," Herbert Spencer's "Various Fragments," and Austin Dobson's "Miscellanies." "Book-Plates, Old and New," is a brief article made valuable by reproductions of many rare plates. It is from J. A. Gade. Gissing's "Charles Dickens" is a critical study. "The Pleasures of Literature and the Solace of Books" is a delightful compilation from ancient and modern writers by Joseph Shaylor; and "Talks with Mr. Gladstone," by L. A. Tollemache, are upon books, men and women, and political questions. Brunetière's "Manual of the History of French Literature" is an excellent résumé of the subject brought down to the end of the epoch of naturalism, in the year 1875. Literary portraits, with an estimate of their works of the principal romancers and essayists, are embraced in Yetta Blaze de Bury's "French Literature of To-day." Both of the last-mentioned works are translations from the French. From the Dutch we received a translation by Alfred Sutro of Maeterlinck's "Wisdom and Destiny."

POETRY AND THE DRAMA.

In no class of literature was the poverty of the year's output so plainly demonstrated as in Poetry. After naming Lloyd Mifflin's "The Slopes of Helicon," "Shapes and Shadows," by Madison Cawein, Mrs. Florence Earle Coates' "Poems," Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Stetson's "In This Our World," Richard Watson Gilder's "In Palestine, and other poems," Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's "From Sunset Ridge," Mrs. Ella Higginson's "When the Birds go North Again," there seems little else to remember from American poets. Walter Learned edited a charming volume, "A Treasury of American Verse." To a Canadian poet and novelist, C. G. Douglas Roberts, must be credited one of the finest poetical efforts of the year—"New York Nocturnes." Stephen Phillips' "Poems" and Lionel Johnson's "Ireland, and Other Poems," published in England in 1897, were with us part of the output of the current year. "A Lowden Sabbath Morn," one of Robert L. Stevenson's poems of Scotch rural life, was illustrated and issued in gift-book style. Bernard Shaw's "Plays Pleasant and Unpleasant," with all their disagreeable qualities, were notable additions to English dramatic literature. They were reprinted in this country. The translation from the Dutch of Vondel's "Lucifer" was an interesting literary event. Numerous editions from the French of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac," and several new renderings of "The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám" marked the year.

ART BOOKS AND WORKS ON ART.

Lew Wallace's "The Fair God," illustrated by Eric Pape, and Mabie's "In the Forest of Arden," decorated by Will H. Low, were the only American art books of 1898 showing original designs of any importance. They were both very beautiful books. A number of works, some new and others new editions of standards, appeared in illustrated editions for the holiday trade, profusely illustrated from photographs. Among these were Fiske's "The Beginnings of New England," Lodge's "Story of the American Revolution," Crawford's "Ave Roma Immortalis," Estelle M. Hurll's "Life of Our Lord in Art," and Adams's "In Nature's Image." A limited edition was imported from England of Walter Armstrong's "Gainsborough and His Place in English Art." It was a magnificent specimen of bookmaking and a notable addition to art works. The Rhead Brothers' illustrations to "The Pilgrim's Progress" are admitted by experienced critics to be the finest designs yet made for this world-renowned book. An edition of Bunyan's immortal volume with these illustrations was one of the incidents of the close of the year. "London Types" represents one of the most modern and original of English illustrators, William Nicholson. The work found a wide sale in this country. Essays on architectural history are contained in "The Column and the Arch," by an American writer, W. P. P. Longfellow. Also from one of our own writers is John C. Van Dyke's "Nature for Its Own Sake," first studies in light, form, and color for every-day people. Du Maurier's "Social Pictorial Satire" deals with the work of John Leech and Charles Keene and other artists who became famous through Punch. "History of Modern Italian Art," by Ashton Rollins Willard, was written to prove that the statement that modern Italian art is degenerate is founded on prejudice and lack of information. Paul Helleu's "Drypoints and Drawings" consists of reproductions in photogravures from the originals of a Parisian artist's finest work. Eugene Muntz's "Leonardo Da Vinci," also from the French, considers the great Italian painter both as artist and man. Tolstoï's "What is Art?" from the Russian original, is a philosophical contribution to the subject.

Music, which we always include under this heading, received an unusual number of contributions. To American pens are to be credited "Music, How it Came to be What it Is," by Hannah Smith; "What is Good Music?" by W. J. Henderson; "Music and Manners in the Classical Period," by H. E. Krehbiel; to English writers, "Violin Making as it Was and Is," by E. Heron-Allen; "Handbook of Acoustics for the Use of Musical Students," by T. F. Harris; "Handbook of Musical History and Bibliography," by James E. Matthew; "The Masters and Their Music," by W.S.B. Mathews; "Makers of Music," by R. F. Sharp; to the French, Albert Lavignac's "The Music Dramas of Richard Wagner"; and to the German, "The History of Music," by Emil Nauman. The musical works from foreign sources were mostly importations.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Our currency complications and many financial questions were treated by American authors in Noyes's "Thirty Years of American Finance," Brough's "Open Mints and Free Banking," Edward Dana Durand's "Finances of New York City," Perry Belmont's "Republican Responsibility for Present Currency Perils," H. B. Russell's "International Monetary Conferences," and Moses Samelson's "How to Right a Wrong," in which the author's remedy for all our ills is a single graduated tax on surplus wealth. Timely monographs were Benjamin Kidd's "The Control of the Tropics" and Theodore Salisbury Woolsey's "America's Foreign Policy." The first work attracted wide attention and is a strong argument in favor of the supremacy of the white man in the tropics. The second consists of chapters on various subjects connected with our war with Spain, Cuba, and Hawaii, on the Monroe doctrine, etc. Our national and local methods of government were analyzed in "Modern Political Institutions," by Simeon E. Baldwin; "Unforeseen Tendencies of Democracy," by Edwin Lawrence Godkin; "Congressional Committees," by L. G. McConachie; and "A History of the Presidency, by Edward Stanwood. In line with these important works is Francis Newton Thorpe's "A Constitutional History of the American People, 1776–1850," a careful and comprehensive study of the evolution of government in this country, in two large volumes; and the second part of "The Origin and Growth of the English Constitution," by Hannis Taylor, being devoted to "The After-Growth of the Constitution," tracing the system out of which grew our own federal government. "Glimpses of England," by the Rev. Moses Coit Tyler, is made up of selected essays on interesting Englishmen, and incidents of English life, social, political, and artistic. "Women and Economics," by Charlotte Perkins, is a study of the economic relation between men and women as a factor in social evolution. The last work of Henry George's life was "The Science of Political Economy," even wider in scope than the world-famous "Progress and Poverty." A peaceable solution of the social problem is Laurence Gronlund's "The New Economy," embracing many practical measures in the way of economic and social reform.

Notes of a visit to co-operative workshops, factories, and farms in Great Britain and Ireland, in which employer, employee, and consumer share in ownership, management, and results, are the substance of Henry Demarest Lloyd's "Labor Copartnership." "Workingmen's Insurance," by William Franklin Willoughby, in the Library of Economics and Politics, is an interesting practical study; "The Bargain Theory of Wages," by John Davidson, is a contribution to the wage question. The second part of Walter A. Wyckoff's "The Workers" was issued in book form. It takes the reader to the slums of Chicago, and makes him acquainted with the anarchists and phases of life among the very poor.

"The History of the Woman's Club Movement in America," by Mrs. Croly, is most comprehensive. Other works belonging to social science and of a popular character are Dr. Josiah Strong's "The Twentieth Century City"; "The Gate Called Beautiful," by Edward A. Warriner; Wingate's "What Shall Our Boys Do for a Living?"; Dr. Banks's "The Christian Gentleman"; Helen Watterson Moody's "The Unquiet Sex"; Mrs. Burton Harrison's "The Well-Bred Girl in Society"; and Elizabeth Glover's "The Gentle Art of Pleasing." These from American writers; while from English came "Maids, Wives, and Bachelors," by Mrs. A. E. Barr; "A Word to Women," by Mrs. C. E. Humphry; and "A Study of Mary Wollstonecraft and the Rights of Woman," by Emma R. Clough. A résumé of the evidence educed by the Lexow Commission in New York City a few years ago is given in "Satan's Invisible World Displayed," by William T. Stead, the editor of Review of Reviews. Sidney and Beatrice Webb's "Industrial Democracy," a scientific analysis of trade-unionism in Great Britain, was one of the works of permanent value. Interesting studies from the French are Gaullieur's "The Paternal State in France and Germany"; and from the German we received Stuckenberg's "Introduction to the Study of Sociology," and Werner Sombart's "Socialism and the Social Movement in the 19th Century." A little book of an entirely humorous nature from a Western journalist, F. Peter Dunne, called "Mr. Dooley in Peace and War," might find mention here. It wittily scored current topics.

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION.

The contributions to religious literature were notably small. The majority of volumes consist of sermons or addresses, few special studies belonging to the year. Among the latter may be mentioned Dr. Harry E. Richards's "The Mystery of Life," a study of Revelation in the light of science by a scientist and believer in conditional immortality; Dr. W. H. Green's "General Introduction to the Old Testament," treating historically of the canon of the Old Testament; a work in pastoral theology entitled "The Christian Pastor and the Working Church," by the Rev. Washington Gladden, in the International Theological Library. "An Outline of Christian Theology," by the Rev. W. Newton Clarke, an amplification and revision of the volume issued privately by the author a few years ago; "The Post-Apostolic Age," by the Rev. Lucius Waterman, being the second volume in Ten Epochs of Church History; and "The New Testament Church," studies of the doctrines of the Baptist Church, are correlated topics by the Rev. W. H. H. Marsh.

Volumes of sermons or religious papers are embraced in the following titles: "Paul and His Friends," by Dr. L. Albert Banks; "The New Puritanism," by the Rev. Lyman Abbott and others; "Interpretations of Life and Religion," by Dr. Walter W. Battershall; "The Wondrous Cross," by Dr. David James Burrell; "Visions," Sunday morning sermons at St. Bartholomew's, New York City; "A National Church," being the Bedell lectures for 1897, by W. Reed Huntington; "The Message of Christ to Manhood," being the William Belden Noble lectures for 1898, by Dr. A. V. G. Allen, Dr. Francis G. Peabody, and others; "Current Questions for Thinking Men," by Robert Stewart McArthur; "A Door Opened," breathing of religious life in its various relations, by Dr. Alexander McKenzie, of Cambridge; "Afternoons in the College Chapel," short addresses to young men on personal religion, by Francis Greenwood Peabody; and "The Story of the Christian Church," by Dr. G. R. Crooks, originally given as lectures to classes at the Drew Theological Seminary.

The second volume of Dr. George Adam Smith's "The Book of the Twelve Prophets, Commonly Called the Minor," completed the "Expositor's Bible"; the series now embracing forty-nine volumes. Other expository and stimulating studies, likewise from the other side, are "Colossian Studies," by H. C. G. Moule, and "The Poetry and the Religion of the Psalms," by Dr. James Robertson (Croall lectures, 1893–94). Good, practical advice for ministers is the substance of "The Clerical Life," by Dr. John Watson, Dr. Marcus Dods, and others. Also for ministers and teachers is the Rev. Walker Gwynne's compilation of "Five Hundred Stories and Illustrations"; Dr. Watson's "Companions of the Sorrowful Way," nine chapters of reflections upon the last days of Jesus Christ on earth, rich in new meanings set forth in the author's peculiarly fascinating style; "The Gospel of Joy," by A. Stopford Brooke, consists of sermons. Hitherto unpublished addresses of Henry Drummond's are bound together under the title "The Ideal Life"; Dr. Hugh Macmillan's "The Spring of the Day" is a companion book to "The Clock of Nature," and is made on the same lines of teaching and illustration; "Selections from the Works of Bishop Thorold" relates to many subjects; "New Forms of Christian Education," by Mrs. Humphry Ward, is an address setting forth this writer's belief in the coming of a new Christian philosophy; "Behind the Pardah," by Irene H. Barnes, is an inspiring chapter in mission work in India; Renan's "The Apostles," translated from the French by Joseph H. Allen and edited also by him, is the eighth and concluding volume in the Renan histories being published here. It was first issued in the original in 1866.

SCIENCE.

"The Wonderful Century," by Alfred Russel Wallace, takes note of the great material and intellectual achievements of the nineteenth century and also of the failures. "Wireless Telegraphy Popularly Explained," by R. Kerr, is one of the few original contributions to Science proper. Nature books were not so numerous as in past years. To American writers we owe "Birds of the United States East of the Rocky Mountains," by A. C. Apgar, "Birds that Hunt and are Hunted," by Neltje Blanchan; "How to Name the Birds," by H. E. Parkhurst; "Bird Studies," by W. E. D. Scott; "Birds of Village and Field," by Florence A. Merriam; "Familiar Life in Field and Forest, by T. S. Mathews; "Moths and Butterflies of the United States," by Sherman F. Denton (pt. 1); and "The Wild Flowers of California," by Mary Elizabeth Parsons. To England we must credit Grant Allen's "Flashlights on Nature"; the third volume of Britton and Brown's "An Illustrated Flora of the Northern United States, Canada, and the British Possessions"; and Richard Kearton's "With Nature and a Camera," being the adventures and observations of a field naturalist and an animal photographer. "The Groundwork of Science," by St. George Mivart, the second volume in Science Series, is for elementary students. The first volume of this series is "The Study of Man," by Alfred Cort Haddon, more for the amateur and the intelligent reader than the experts. Handbooks for the student were "The Sphere of Science," by Frank Sargent Hoffman, a study of the nature and method of scientific investigation; David Starr Jordan's "Footnotes to Evolution"; "Outlines of the Earth's History," by Nathaniel S. Shaler; and "The Art of Taxidermy," by John Rowley. Mental Science was enriched by "Theories of the Will in the History of Philosophy," by Archibald Alexander; "Evolution, Ethics, and Animal Psychology," by Edward Payson Evans; "Outlines of Descriptive Psychology," by George Trumbull Ladd; and "The Psychology of Suggestion," by Boris Sidis. These are all American books. From the German of Nietzsche was translated the tenth volume of his works, "A Genealogy of Morals." From the French we obtained Louis Proal's important monograph, "Political Crime," no. 4 of the Criminology Series, and "The Play of Animals," a valuable contribution to biology, animal psychology, and the genetic study of art.

The International Education Series, made up of works by authors both in this country and in Europe, had added to it Harris's "Psychologic Foundations of Education," and Taylor's "The Study of the Child." Other works that enrinched Educational Science were Charles W. Eliot's volume of essays and addresses, called "Educational Reform"; N. Murray Butler's "The Meaning of Education"; "The Social Mind and Education," by George Edgar Vincent; 'Psychology for Teachers," by C. Lloyd Morgan; "The Development of the Child," by Nathan Oppenheim; and Davidson's "Rousseau and Education According to Nature," in Great Educators Series. M. M. M.

ENGLISH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1898.

THE London Publishers' Circular has compiled the following statistics of the books published in England during the year 1898. The table does not include books published in America and not also published in England, nor books of which the prices have been altered, though the notice of such has filled considerable space in the columns of the Publishers' Circular during the year. Of works published in the United States only we have recorded in our weekly lists during the past year 397; of works reduced in price, 159; and of works of which the price has advanced, 31.

The output of new books and new editions has declined, the number for 1898 being 410 less than in 1897. It is nearly 1000 more than in 1896. Law and miscellaneous are the only two classes in which the total numbers show an increase. In the case of law the increase is a score; and there is double that increase in the case of new educational works, while there is a decrease of a like number in educational reprints. The increase of 200 in miscellaneous works is partly accounted for by the fact that pamphlets have been unusually numerous.

Commenting on these statistics, the editor of the Circular says: "Our analytical table of books published in 1898 will cause some surprise. It is generally taken for granted that there is year by year a constant and steady increase in the number of new books issued, and during recent years there certainly has been a remarkable growth in production. This year, however, the total, counting new works and new editions, is some 400 less than that of 1897. This is a fact for which we dare say few will be prepared, and fewer still will expect to be told that the chief decline is in fiction. Yet new novels and stories for the young are 200 under the figures for the preceding twelve months, while on new editions there is a shrinkage of nearly 100. It was inevitable that sooner or later this decline should take place, and it is better to have it soon than late. When the three-volume novel was abolished everybody who could concoct a story, and many who could not, rushed into print expecting by some magic means to secure glory and pelf. But it was found that natural laws were still in operation, and that the six-shilling novel offered no easier road to fortune than did its cumbrous predecessor.

"Then grumbling recruits began to desert, partly because results were seldom commensurate to expectations, partly because publishers looked askance on works for which the public showed no relish. A grievous mistake had been made by such as fancied that the abolition of the three-volume novel would enable all and sundry who had mastered the elementary rules of grammar or had an itch for writing to leap into fame. As a matter of fact, we believe it is much harder for the tiro to succeed to-day than it was ten or fifteen years ago, not because publishers are less enterprising and appreciative, but because of the inordinate competition of authors themselves. There never was a time when the popular novelist reaped such golden harvests as fall to him to-day, but such harvests are, with rare exceptions, for such as have made a name. The decline in fiction, then, is natural; nor is there any reason for alarm. A nation that receives in the course of twelve months 1758 new stories is scarcely to be pitied for lack of reading.

"Several departments show little variation. Theology shows a slight decline, while in education the total stands as it stood a year ago. Law is up, but political economy, art, science, and travel are slightly down. In regard to works of travel, however, it should be said that if the quantity is less the quality is remarkable. The prophets of the daily press are busily engaged in settling which books are to live and which to die, oblivious of the utter indifference of time to their judgments. It is much too soon to decide how many books of 1898 are ephemeral and how many immortal. But it may be predicted with tolerable certainty that at least one book of travel given to the world last year is likely to have a considerable lease of life. In poetry and the drama the figures of last year are practically repeated. 'Hope springs eternal in the' poet's breast; were it not so, he could not go on so zealously producing on such slight encouragment. Year-books are down, which is singular, and essays appear to be going out of fashion. The essay is admittedly one of the most delightful forms of literature; how, then, is it permitted to fall into decay? Is it because the essential talent is wanting, or because spicier things have spoiled the public palate? Medicine and surgery are stationary; but miscellaneous and pamphlets show a substantial increase. History is practically as it was a year ago, a fact on which lovers of literature may congratulate themselves.

"From the publishers' and booksellers' point of view what is to be the verdict upon 1898? We fear that in some respects it must be unfavorable. Throughout the whole twelve months the public mind has been disturbed by political excitement. East and west there have been wars and rumors of wars. In spring the conflict between Spain and the United States diverted the people from books, and in the Far East hostilities were threatened. Consequently the spring season was unsatisfactory. Later came the victory of Omdurman and the excitement over Fashoda. Nevertheless, the autumn season has been a fairly good one for booksellers. From most of the large centres they report a satisfactory turn-over. For some weeks before Christmas trade was exhilaratingly brisk, and it is to be hoped that when accounts are finally made up the year will be found at least an average one. If so, we dare say the trade is likely to be satisfied."

FRENCH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1898.

THE Bibliographie de la France in its issue for December 31, 1898, gives the following figures of the number of books, musical compositions, engravings, etc., issued in France during 1898. The number of books published was 14,781, showing an increase of 982 works compared with the total of 13,799 in 1897. The number of musical compositions was 6312, or 227 more than in 1897, and the number of engravings, lithographs, and photographs was 1303, or 368 less than in 1897.

ENGLISH BOOK SALES OF 1898.

J. H. Slater in the London Athenæum.

ONE noticeable circumstance may be mentioned in connection with the sales held during the year 1898, and that is the unusual importance of the "miscellaneous" collections. It is customary to associate miscellanea with mediocrity; and though this idea receives, so far as books are concerned, a distinct check once or twice at least every season, it is but seldom that it is almost entirely dissipated. During the past year few sales of this kind have failed to let loose upon the world again, so to speak, books of the greatest importance from a literary as well as a pecuniary point of view. It is not the number only, but their extraordinary variety that cannot fail to strike anyone who looks over the records of the sale-rooms; and in these dispersions of miscellaneous literature the fancy has, in this respect, full play. It is somewhat amusing to find Pierce Egan jostled by Diodorus Siculus and Erasmus, and Leigh Hunt rained upon by the tears of Hunnis, whose "Seven Sobs of a Sorrowful Soule for Sinne" have echoed down the corridors for more than three hundred years. And many of these books, too, no one, unless he be very widely read or extremely enthusiastic in the matter of titles, is at all likely ever to have so much as heard of before. They exist, of course, and may possibly be read sometimes; but they live only in the workshop of the bibliographer, and are strangers without his door, for they speak for the most part of incidents long forgotten and of men whose very names have passed into oblivion. Still they sell for good round sums, many of them, and that is the most curious fact of all. Met with but seldom, and consequently "very scarce," they are greatly coveted. Though dead and worm-eaten, many of these old books—though not all, by any manner of means—speak on to the élite, nor can they be listened to for nought.

On the whole, it may be said that the book sales of 1898 have been extremely important. Of late it has become the fashion to declare that each succeeding year has eclipsed its predecessors in this respect, though that is clearly a fallacy, which may, perhaps, be debited to the account of the great Ashburnham Library, sold in sections during many days, thus keeping the notion of high and increasing prices perpetually before the public. Leaving this library out of the calculation the importance of the sales by auction which have taken place during, say, the last five years has not been phenomenal. There is a noticeable increase in the total amounts realized annually, but nothing more substantial on which to found an argument that valuable books and their owners are soon parted. Change is perpetual, and the same volumes are seen in the auction-rooms at periods which seem to recur with mathematic precision. Nay, the length of each period of acquisition might even be estimated by reference to the insurance tables, so punctually comes the hammer and the end. But this is a barbaric and soulless way of looking at facts, and no true book-lover would countenance it for a moment. Still, to parody the immortal phrase of Galileo, it (the hammer) falls notwithstanding. To what tune, merry or otherwise, it has fallen during the last year this record will substantially show.

The first sale of the year was held by Messrs. Sotheby on January 21 and following day. This may be passed by as containing little of importance. The Skene Library, sold a week later, contained some good books, though the majority were made up into parcels. Beaumont and Fletcher's "Comedies and Tragedies," 1647, with a copy of the edition of "The Wild Goose Chase," 1652, brought £10 (old calf;) ten volumes of the mystical and thoroughly incomprehensible works of Jacob Behman, £5 12*s.*; Champlain's "Voyages," Paris, 1613, 4to, £11; Montfaucon's "Monuments de la Monarchie Française," on large paper, 5 vols., folio, 1729–1733, £12 15*s.*; and a large-paper copy of the "Sealed Book" of Charles II., 1662 folio, £15 10*s.* (red morocco, with the arms of Westminster College.) More important was the library of a gentleman dispersed on February 2, when Allot's "England's Parnassus," first edition, 1600, brought £25 10*s.* (old calf;) Lescarbot's "Histoire de la Nouvelle France," 1618, 8vo, with the four original maps, £16; the "Marguerites de la Marguerite," Lyons, 1547, 8vo. £22 5*s.* (fine copy in morocco extra;) the first folio edition of the "Paradise Lost," 1688, £7 7*s.* (fine copy in ornamented morocco;) "The Court of Civill Courtesie," 1591, 4to, of which only one other copy is known, £20 (calf gilt;) and Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," 1493, folio, twenty-two leaves missing, £150. This particular copy sold in 1897 for £200, while the Earl of Ashburnham's brought £233. That belonging to the Earl, by the way, was the very one which sold at the Roxburghe sale in 1812 for £14 3*s.* 6*d.* Later on in the month the "Description de l'Égypte," published by the order of Napoleon I., 23 vols., atlas folio, 1809–28, sold for £22 5*s.* (half morocco;) the four 4to volumes of "La Galerie Impériale Royale au Belvédère," 1821–28, with proof plates, £16 5*s.*; Gould's "Birds of New Guinea," complete in the 25 parts, £38; Swinburne's "Laus Veneris," 1866, in the original sheets, £13; and a good copy of "The Turner Gallery," Virtue, n.d., atlas folio, £14 10*s.* (large-paper proofs.)

The library of the late A. C. Lamb, which was sold at Edinburgh by Mr. Dowell on February 7 and three following days, was of an all-round literary character, which under ordinary circumstances would only need casual notice. The Burns portion of it was, however, of quite exceptional interest, the extensive collection of editions being second to none in private hands. It was on this occasion that the uncut copy of the first, or Kilmarnock, edition of 1786 went for the sum of £572 5*s.* (original paper covers,) a record price. A copy of the first Edinburgh edition, 1787, sold for £8 in the original boards, and another for double that amount in morocco extra. Most people would think that these amounts ought to have been reversed. A third copy of the same edition, with a presentation inscription by the poet on a blank leaf, brought £31 10*s.*, while another presentation copy of the edition of 1793 realized £67 4*s.*, and Small's "Treatise on Ploughs," 1784, 8vo, with Burns's autograph on the title, £30. "Blind Harry's Metrical History of Sir William Wallace," 1790, 3 vols., also had the poet's autograph on the title-page of vol. i., and for that reason went for £28 7*s.* The other Burnsiana in this extensive collection, autograph letters excepted, sold for small sums; but that in no way detracts from the immense amount of labor and patience that would be required to acquire such an extensive and representative collection. Mr. Lamb's Shakspearean folios and early quartos were not good enough to command much money. A second folio went for £16, and a third for £60; "Poems," 1640, 12mo, brought £23; "Richard II.," 1634, 4to, £40; "The Merry Wives of Windsor," 1630, 4to, £51; "The Two Noble Kinsmen," 1634, 4to, £24 10*s.*; "The Merchant of Venice," 1637, 4to, £43; and "Romeo and Juliet," 1637, 4to, £43.

To show to what depth of misery the naturalist Aldrovandus and all his works have fallen, it is only necessary to quote the fourteen folio volumes which on February 16 were disposed of by Puttick & Simpson for £1 (old calf gilt.) With this remark I pass on to the sale of the library of the late J. H. Johnson, held by the same firm on February 28 and seven subsequent days. The books all sold well, notably the following: Audsley's "Ornamental Arts of Japan," 2 vols., 1882, folio, £10 15*s.*; "Biblia Sacra Latina," 1477, folio £9 10*s.*; "Biblia Sacra Germanica," Nuremberg, 1483, folio, £22; the first edition of Matthew's Bible, 1537, folio, £18 (title in facsimile and some leaves mended;) the third edition of the Great Bible, July, 1540, folio, £60 (a leaf in facsimile;) Caxton's "Cronycles of Englond," printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1520, folio, £24 10*s.*

(defective in parts;) the Kelmscott Chaucer, 1896, £27 10*s.* (selling now for considerably more, so rapidly are all the Kelmscott books advancing in price;) Cicero's "De Officiis," printed by Sweynheym & Pannartz at Rome in 1469, folio, £20; Froissart's "Cronycles of Englande," 1525, folio, £11 (titles and last leaf in facsimile;) Tindale's Newe Testament, 1536, or "Blank stone" Bible, as it is often called, £20; and Coverdale's New Testament, printed by Nicholson in 1538, small 4to, £18 5*s.* On March 21 Messrs. Sotheby disposed of one of those miscellaneous assortments to which reference has been made. Some 1650 lots were catalogued, and the total sum realized (£7360) shows their importance. The remarkable collection illustrative of the life and works of Shakspeare, which was to have been offered en bloc at this sale, was previously disposed of by private treaty. There remained, however, a choice collection of Herbals, one of them—the "Buch der Natur," 1475, small folio—bringing as much as £101. This is the first edition of one of the finest woodcut books produced at Augsburg in the fifteenth century. The books relating to gardening, flowers, etc., were also very fine, though high prices were the exception in this instance. "The Boke named Cordyale," printed by Caxton, March 24, 1479, brought £505, being £255 less than last year the imperfect Ashburnham copy sold for; and Boethius's "Consolacions of Philosophie," also printed by Caxton, n.d. (about 1478,) realized £181 (thirty-eight leaves missing.) Then we come to a most important series of Thackerayana from the collection of Mr. MacDowell, assistant to the novelist. A volume of manuscript poems, sketches, etc., in the autograph of Thackeray, realized the handsome sum of £225; the original autograph manuscript of a drama, "The Poor Poet," performed at the Adelphi many years ago "with unbounded applause," 18 pp., 8vo, £59; and a small note-book with original autograph notes and sketches, £25 10*s.* There were also other relics of less importance, though a 4to volume of "Algebra Problems" realized £26. Among the printed books is one, however, that cannot be passed. It is known —or rather not known, as nobody seemed to have heard of it before—as "The National Standard of Literature, Science, Music, Theatricals, and the Fine Arts," and consists of thirty-nine parts or numbers, containing many contributions distinctly traceable to Thackeray. One of them—"The Devil's Wager"—was reprinted with alterations in the "Paris Sketch-Book," but all the rest appear to have been effectually hidden away since 1833, the date of the publication of the periodical in question. The amount realized was £40. Large-paper copies of the Badminton "Hunting" have now crept up to £29. On the whole, this was the most important sale of the year, the third portion of the Ashburnham Library and the Makellar and Morris collections alone excepted. It was of such an extensive character that it is quite impossible to do justice to it in the limited space at my disposal. Room must, however, be found for a copy of the third folio of Shakspeare's works, which brought £260. It was a genuine sound and clean copy in old calf, and measured 13¾ in. by 9 in., a matter of considerable importance to the buyer.

It would be a most difficult task to criticise the collection of books and manuscripts belonging to Harold Baillie Weaver, which Christie, Manson & Woods sold on March 29 and following days. The majority appear to have been bought in 1895 at the Gennadius and other sales, and were now disposed of in nearly every case for very much less than they cost. For instance, a manuscript Novum Testamentum, which was acquired in 1895 for £24, went for a guinea; and though this is an extreme instance of depression, it is apparently the fact that the sale in its entirety showed a loss of more than £24,000 on the original cost. The books and MSS. are said to have cost about £30,000 in 1895, and were sold now for £5527 and some odd shillings. This abysmal drop affords cogent evidence, if any be needed, of the pitfalls that often threaten the footsteps of spirited buyers. On April 4 and later a number of Kelmscott books came to the hammer. The Chaucer now brought £28 10*s.*; "The Story of the Glittering Plain," 1894, £5 10*s.*, and Keats's "Poems," 1894, £12. It looks as though not only these, but all other works from the same press, will soon be unprocurable except at a ruinous price. At the same sale Byron's "Curse of Minerva," 1812, 4to, sold for £97. Only three copies of this scarce pamphlet have appeared in the auction-rooms during the past twelve years, the two previous ones bringing £100 (boards) and £60 (ibid.) respectively. Mention must also be made of Shakspeare's works, the Halliwell-Phillipps edition of 1853 16 vols., folio, £58, and Hals's "Compleat History of Cornwall," Exeter, c. 1750, folio, £20. This is a most curious price, as Hals's incomplete work is the scarcest in the whole range of topographical literature. The Earl of Aylesford's copy sold in 1888 for £150, and the Hartley copy for £70 some years before. The Bliss sale, held in April, was remarkable for the collection of song-books disclosed by it. None of these realized much, but the assortment was, to say the least, extensive. I set out a complete list of them in the subject index to "Book-Prices Current," never having previously seen so many at one time. At this same Bliss sale a fine copy of "Poems by Two Brothers" sold for £17 (original boards,) and Allot's "England's Parnassus," 1600, 8vo, £20 10*s.* (some leaves mended and others soiled).

The library of the late T. M. Whitehead (Sotheby's, May 3) contained an extra illustrated copy on large paper of Selwyn's "Catalogue of Bewick's Works," £71, and some other desirable books, including "Le Decameron of Boccaccio," 5 vols., 1759, £20 (old morocco;) a set of the parts of the "Pickwick Papers," £24 10*s.*; Dorat's "Les Baisers," 1770, 8vo, £16 10*s.*; and several MSS. Books of Hours, three of which brought £200, £151, and £101 respectively. Passing two sales of little importance held during the first days of May, we now come to the third portion of the Ashburnham Library. So much has already been written about this and the other portions of an historic collection of the very first rank that any extended reference here would be mere surplusage. The third portion consisted of 1182 lots, which realized £13,911 8*s.* 6*d.*, the amount realized for the whole library being thus £62,712 7*s.* 6*d.* The first five editions of the "Compleat Angler" attracted the most attention, for each book was in its original binding, the first four in sheep and the fifth in calf. The price obtained for the set was £800. In sharp contrast to this is the £235 paid for a set of the same books at the Snow sale on December 1. These had all been rebound, and, though complete as to collation, were defective in places. There can be no question, however, that the rebinding affected the auction value more than anything else. Among the high prices realized at the Ashburnham sale (third portion) were £190 for the 1472 edition of Pliny's "Historia Naturalis," printed on vellum; £240 for "The Booke of Common Praier," 1559; £148 for Jugge and Cawoode's Prayer Book of 1559; and £150 for a copy of the first edition of John Knox's Liturgy, printed at Edinburgh by Lekprevik in 1565. "A Goodly Prymer in Englyshe," June 16, 1535, printed on vellum, and probably unique, sold for £225; and a collection of "Rappresentationi," printed at Florence during the sixteenth century, no less than £712. Then there is the vellum copy of "Le Roman de la Rose," n.d., to be mentioned. This belonged to one of the earliest editions known, and realized £355. A first folio Shakspeare brought £585; a second folio, £90; a third, £190, and a fourth, £55. Early quartos there were none—a curious circumstance, seeing that the late earl commenced collecting in 1814, when most of these aristocrats could have been secured with comparative ease for a few pounds each. And so we must take leave for good and all of the great Ashburnham sale, with the remark that on December 13 a number of volumes which had been returned for unsuspected imperfections not disclosed in the original catalogues were again sold by auction. To compare the prices realized in these two circumstances will no doubt be an agreeable occupation to those who study the current values of books and try to find the reasons for their notorious ups and downs in the market.

On the approach of the close of the season there is usually less to chronicle. We notice the 1891 edition of "The Story of the Glittering Plain," another Kelmscott book—in fact, the first issued from that press—which brought £16. Five years ago £4 was a very usual price to pay. A fine copy of Sotheby's "Principia Typographica," extra illustrated and bound in 10 folio volumes, the author's own copy, sold for £131, in June; and later on a presentation copy of "Arthur O'Leary," 3 vols., 1844, £17 5*s.* (original cloth;) Manning and Bray's "History and Antiquities of Surrey," 3 vols., 1804–14, folio, £19 (russia extra;) Notes and Queries, from the commencement in 1849 to June, 1882, with the Indices to Series i. to v., together 70 vols., £19 (publisher's cloth). The library of the late R. W. Wilbraham, of Northwich, which was sold at the end of June, contained a fine copy of that rare book "L'Histoire Notable de la Floride," Paris, 1586. Richard Hakluyt supplied the manuscript from which the narrative was published, and the book is dedicated to Sir Walter Ralegh. Not more than half a dozen copies are known, and this one brought £41. Lord Byron's "The Waltz," first edition, 1813, £51 (half calf;) Caxton's "Chronicle," printed by Machlinia about 1484, folio, £101; "The Apologye of Syr Thomas More," 1533, 8vo, £18 15*s.* (old morocco;) "Les Œuvres" of Rabelais, 3 vols., 1741, 4to, £18, and the "Practise" of the duellist and P. Stubbes's "The Anatomie of Abuses," 1583, 8vo, £27. There were many other scarce and valuable works in Mr. Wilbraham's library, which, indeed, appears to have been formed with much literary taste and discrimination, as also was that of Henry Howard, of Regent's Park. In the latter case, however, the books were of an entirely different character. Ainsworth, Alken, Cruikshank, Dickens, Leech, Lever, Lover, Thackeray, and other old but yet ever new friends trooped forth as they were wont to do half a dozen years ago, when collectors were more kind. The collection of sporting and humorously illustrated works was also a very good and extensive one, and prices ruled high, as they generally do for fine copies of books of this kind. In this library also were many books of views, among them Silvestre's rare French series, exhibiting parts of France as it was at the time of Louis XIV., 1670, oblong folio, £52 (morocco super-extra). Almost at the very end of the season a made-up copy of the first edition of the Bible in English, Antwerp, October 4, 1535, sold for £61; Statham's "Abridgement of Cases," Rouen, 1490, folio, probably the first book issued by Pynson, £74; a third Kelmscott Chaucer, £33 this time, and yet again a fourth, £36 10*s.*; Combe's "English Dance of Death," a very clean copy, in the original boards, 2 vols., 1815–16, £17 5*s.*; and many more.

The new season, now in full operation, began on October 24, with the sale of the library of the late Osbert Salvin; and then follow one or two comparatively unimportant libraries. That of the late Rev. William Makellar will be fresh in the memory, with its wealth of Bibles, Testaments, and Prayer-Books, among them the Mazarin Bible, on paper, of which only twenty-five copies are known. This was the Syston Park copy which sold in 1884 for £3900. It now brought £2950. The entire Makellar library realized £11,118. The angling library of the late Edward Snow, of Boston, U. S. A., to which reference has already been made in connection with the "Compleat Angler," covered a very wide period of time. Very old books were found side by side with very new ones, and the collection was of the best and most comprehensive character. With exceptions, books on angling do not bring sensational prices, and the most that can be said of these is that they sold for considerably more than they are accustomed to do. Thus Dennys's "Secrets of Angling," 1652, though imperfect, realized £36; Gilbert's "Angler's Delight," 1676, £11 10*s.* (with all faults;) and Barlow's "Severall Wayes of Hunting, Hawking, and Fishing," 1671, £7 10*s.*

The late William Morris's library, dispersed by Sotheby on December 5 and five following days, was of extra importance by reason of the well-known personality of its founder and the scholarly nature of its contents. It contained a large number of valuable manuscripts on vellum and specimens of the productions of early printers, collected by Morris with a definite purpose in connection with his art and typographical work. The total amount realized for 1215 lots was £10,992, an excellent average, due entirely to the manuscripts. The highest price obtained for any single work was £225 for a MS. Testamentum Novum Latinum, a beautiful product of the twelfth century, in which the apocryphal Epistle of St. Paul to the Laodiceans follows the Epistle to Philemon.

A general survey of the book sales of 1898 shows that early printed works, whether English or foreign, are, as heretofore, in great demand, even at prices which are continually advancing. These are the books that find their way ultimately into large public collections, and in transitu to the temporary possession of owners to whom money is no object. Every year sees their number decrease, and it needs no prophet to predict that in the near future they will be conspicuous by their entire absence, even from the largest private libraries. The Kelmscott books are rapidly rising in value, as already stated, and the same remark is applicable to first editions of the earlier works of R. L. Stevenson and Rudyard Kipling. Sporting books, especially those with colored plates, appear to be rapidly taking the place of first editions illustrated by such talented artists as the Cruikshanks, "Phiz," and Leech, at one time all the rage. These will have their day again, no doubt, but the collector of moderate means was driven out of the field by advancing prices, and so all but the very best copies have fallen, for the time being, on evil days. After all, in matters affecting books, the question of literature is the one that very properly predominates over all others. There is, of course, the little matter of this or that edition to be attended to, and one copy of the same edition may, as ever, be more desirable, because in better order, than another. But the cardinal test cannot be ignored. A book is considered to be good or inferior — it is sought for or ignored in the school which exists not for the day only, but for many days—as its literary capacity is evident or the reverse.

AUGUST BRENTANO INSANE.

J. D. R. Baldwin, Dr. Charles Phelps, and David Gilbert, the commissioners appointed by Justice Truax of the Supreme Court to inquire into the sanity of August Brentano, heard testimony with a sheriff's jury in the county courthouse in New York on January 21. The application to have Mr. Brentano legally declared incompetent was made by his sister, Laura Brentano, who gave evidence that he had been in the sanitarium of Dr. Edwin Goodridge, at Flushing, for some time.

Dr. Goodridge testified that Mr. Brentano was suffering from general paresis, and was incurable. He was hardly able to articulate, and was altogether unable to take care of himself or his affairs. Other medical evidence having been given, the jury found a verdict that Mr. Brentano was of unsound mind.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE.

The following circular letter was issued to the members of the Stationers' Board of Trade under date of January 23:

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees held on Wednesday, January 18, Mr. Edwin H. Loveless was appointed secretary of this board. Mr. Loveless has been connected with this office for over seventeen years, having been at the head of the collection department since 1882; his work has always been satisfactory to the officers from every point of view. Mr. Loveless has also acted as secretary pro tem. since November 18, 1898, and is familiar with the duties of the position, and I am confident that he will be successful in meeting the wants of the members of the board.

It is matter of regret that the members of this board have no opportunity of meeting each other. The value of a social feature to an organization of this kind can hardly be calculated. I think a strong effort should be made to have at least one dinner each year. Such efforts during the past two years have failed, but I think the interest of the board demand that the effort should be made again, and I take this opportunity of asking you if you will support such a movement and help to arrange for an annual dinner, and try and make them in future a feature of this organization.

Henry C. Bainbridge,
President The Stationers' Board of Trade.

SCRIBNER FELLOWSHIP FOR PRINCETON.

It was announced in Princeton, January 19, that Charles Scribner, of the firm of Charles Scribner's Sons, had founded a fellowship in English literature in Princeton University. It will yield $500 per year. It is open to competition for all seniors who have been in college two academic years and have the other general requirements for all fellowships.

MR. JOHN LANE

Begs to announce for Publication during February:

THE COLLECTED POEMS OF WILLIAM WATSON. Crown 8vo, 305 pp., designed cover, $2.50.

This volume includes the work contained in the author's several volumes, "Poems," "Odes and other Poems," "The Father of the Forest and other Poems," "The Year of Shame," "The Hope of the World and other Poems," with the exception of a few poems excluded by the author.

The London Daily Chronicle says: "As we look through this collected edition of his work we feel confirmed in our belief that whatever his limitations, and they are not few, it is Mr. Watson's function and his glory to hand on, in this generation, the great classical tradition of English poetry. On the threshold of the twentieth century he reconciles and brings to a common denominator, as it were, the best qualities of eighteenth-century and of nineteenth-century verse. He is the heir no less of Dryden than of Tennyson; it is hard to say whether Keats or Pope has more potently influenced him. There is significance in the fact that his favorite instrument, which he fingers with the utmost mastery, is the classic instrument of the English Muse—the iambic pentameter. Pregnant, resonant, memorable lines flow inexhaustibly from his pen; and some of them, we venture to predict, will live with the language."

THE SILENCE OF LOVE. By Edmond Holmes. Small 4to, $1.50.

A volume of sonnets.

THE RUBÁIYÁT OF OMAR KHAYYÁM. A paraphrase from several literal translations. By Richard Le Gallienne. New edition. With a cover design by WILL BRADLEY. $1.25.

A DAUGHTER OF THE VINE. By Gertrude Atherton. Crown 8vo, $1.50.

A new novel by Mrs. Atherton; a companion volume to "The Californians" and "American Wives and English Husbands."

THE ROMANCE OF A RITUALIST. By Vincent Brown, author of "My Brother" and "Ordeal by Compassion." Crown 8vo, $1.50.

THE SPIRIT OF PLACE AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Alice Meynell. Fcap. 8vo, $1.25.

Uniform with the same author's "The Rhythm of Life," "The Colour of Life," "The Children," and "Poems."

THE LAST BALLAD AND OTHER POEMS. By John Davidson. $1.50.

THE ALHAMBRA AND OTHER POEMS. By F. B. Money-Coutts. $1.25.

By the author of "The Revelation of St. Love the Divine."

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

THE NEW "GOLDEN AGE."

DREAM DAYS By KENNETH GRAHAME.

Third edition. 12mo, $1.25.

The Evening Sun says: "In 'Dream Days' Mr. Kenneth Grahame continues the delightful adventures of the delightful children who were first introduced to us in 'The Golden Age.'"

The Boston Journal says: "It is generally a commonplace of criticism to say that a sequel is quite independent of its predecessor, and has an interest of its own. To the devoted readers of Mr. Grahame's books, such a recommendation seems a sacrilege. What pity would we not offer to the daring unfortunate who would wish to read 'Dream Days' without reading the 'Golden Age,' who would force himself into intimacy with the characters whom he cannot appreciate? This must not deter anyone from reading this very charming book; he must only remember to read also its classic forerunner.'"

BY THE AUTHOR OF THE "FOREST LOVERS."

PAN AND THE YOUNG SHEPHERD. By Maurice Hewlett. 16mo, $1.25.

The Bookman says: "Like the 'Forest Lovers,' it is bathed in a woodland atmosphere and vitalized with the passion of love and youth. It has the throbbing note of life, the spirit of everlasting youth and the human impulse in it which find the universal heart.

The London Daily Chronicle says: "It is a strange piece of work thoroughly characteristic of the imaginative writer who gave us that delightful romance 'The Forest Lovers.'"

List of Books Published During 1898.

Three new books by E. EVERETT GREEN, author of "A Clerk of Oxford," "The Young Pioneers," "Tom Tufton's Travels," and other Historical Tales.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH. A Story of the Struggle in America. With 6 illustrations, and a map showing the scene of the war between the French and English. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.50.

"In 'French and English' we have a tale of the struggle in early American history between these great rival nations. The ferocity of the Indians, the horrors of border warfare and the strange wild life of those primitive times are portrayed by a master hand. It is a boy's book, full of adventure and the free life of the forest. It makes vivid and real the scenes of the past, and teaches patriotism and courage."—S. S. Library Bulletin.

TOM TUFTON'S TOLL. A sequel to "Tom Tufton's Travels." With 6 illustrations. 8vo, extra cloth, $1.25. A story of Queen Anne.

ESTHER'S CHARGE. With 6 illustrations. Cloth extra, 8vo, $1.00.

Three books by HAROLD AVERY, author of "Frank's First Term," "Soldiers of the Queen," etc.

THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE. Its Trials and Triumphs. With 6 illustrations. 8vo, cloth, extra, $1.25.

"It is a natural, stirring, wholesome and amusing story about boys and their pranks and studies, and it will be well thumbed."—Congregationalist.

"Full of action and such incident as causes a boy's heart to respond to the touch of honor and brave deeds."—The Churchman.

STOLEN OR STRAYED. A School Story. Illustrated. 8vo, cloth extra, 50 cents.

"A pretty little story for the Sunday-school library, neatly printed and thoroughly interesting. The book is finely illustrated."—New York Observer.

THE DORMITORY FLAG. A School Story. With 8 illustrations. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.50. Full of outdoor sport. With a thrilling little sketch of later years on the Indian frontier.

THE GOLDEN PICTURE BOOK. Stories and Verses. Over 80 colored illustrations. Small quarto, 288 pages, $1.75.

THROUGH PERIL, TOIL, AND PAIN. By LUCY TAYLOR, author of "Fritz of Prussia," "Going on Pilgrimage," etc. With illustrations. Cloth extra. $1.50.

A FIGHTER IN GREEN. A Tale of Algeria. By HERBERT HAYENS, author of "Under the Lone Star," "Clevely Sahib," etc. With illustrations. Cloth extra, $1.50.

A tale of the conquering of Algeria by the French. Filled with heroic deeds, and contains the romantic story of two brothers who fought on opposite sides in the struggle.

IN THE GRIP OF THE SPANIARD. By HERBERT HAYENS, author of "Under the Lone Star," "The British Legion," etc. With illustrations. Cloth extra, $1.50.

A story of the struggle for independence in Venezuela under Bolivar. Full of adventure.

ONE SUMMER BY THE SEA. By J. M. CALLWELL, author of "Dorothy Arden," "Timothy Tatters," etc. With illustrations. Cloth extra, 8vo, $1.25.

A book for girls. The story of three orphaned children who spent a summer on the seacoast of Ireland, and the changes that came with their life.

THE UNCHARTED ISLAND. By SKELTON KUPPORD, author of "Hammond's Hard Lines," etc. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.25.

"The book is so filled with action, and the island so oaded with treasure, that few boys will complain at any apparent lack of reality in the narrative."—The Dial.

OUR VOW. A Story for Children. By E. L. HAVERFIELD, author of "On Trust," etc. With illustrations. Cloth extra, $1.00.

THE GREEN TOBY JUG AND THE PRINCESS WHO LIVED OPPOSITE. By Mrs. EDWIN HOHLER. Illustrated. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.00.

Delightful stories for children.

"A sweet simple tale which will hold a place beside Mrs. Ewing's charming books."—The Churchman.

KING ALFRED'S VIKING. A Story of the First English Fleet. By CHARLES W. WHISTLER. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.00.

"Opens up new territory to boyish eyes, taking one clear back to the viking days of A. D. 800 and thereabouts. The story is told in excellent manner, and the historical atmosphere seems to be accurate. Every boy likes the vikings, but the latter too seldom appear in fiction." — The Standard.

"It is a good story, and (what is more unusual) it is well written."—The Dial.

CHUMS AT LAST. A Tale of School Life. By A. FORSYTH GRANT. Illustrated. 8vo, cloth extra, $1.00.

"It is a lively picture of boy life . . . sure to be relished by American boys. It will promote sound manliness."—Congregationalist.

"A book to be recommended without qualification."—The Churchman.

American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Twelve volumes are ready of the

and can be supplied unbound for $42.50; bound in cloth for $48.50; or bound in half leather for $54.50. These twelve volumes contain a total of 8665 pages.

The Annals is published bi-monthly. The annual subscription price is $6.00; with a special rate to libraries of $5.00. It is sent free to all members of the Academy.

Besides the larger papers contributed to the Annals by many eminent scholars both at home and abroad, especial attention has been directed to the departments. All important books are carefully reviewed or noticed by specialists. The department of Personal Notes keeps the reader informed of movements in the academic and scientific world. Notes upon Municipal Government and Sociology preserve a careful record of events and other matters of interest in these departments, which at the present time claim so large a share of public attention.

"The publications of the American Academy of Political and Social Science are always of value. The papers and monographs range over a wide field, and are marked by great care and thoroughness."—Guardian, Manchester, England.

Special rates to libraries for complete sets of the Annals.

Publications on Current Topics.

The "Academy" is publishing a series of monographs on political, social, and economic questions.

THIS series now includes 245 papers treating of practically every question embraced within the field of the Academy's interest. A catalogue of this series will be sent on application. The numbers are issued fortnightly. The price for the whole 245 publications to date is $50.00.

A few of the papers which have lately appeared in this series are:

The War as a Suggestion of Manifest Destiny. By H. H. Powers. Price.....25c.

Proposed Reforms of the Monetary System. By Prof. J. F. Johnson. Price.....25c.

NEW BOOKS ISSUED IN 1898.

The True History of the Missouri Compromise and Its Repeal. By Mrs. Archibald Dixon. 8vo. Over 600 pages, uniform with recent editions of the work of Jefferson, Hamilton, etc.....$4 00

"This is a very valuable contribution to the history of our country. It covers the period of thirty-five years—1819 to 1854—during which the struggle between the Northern and Southern States on the subject of slavery, culminating a few years after in the determination of the Southern States to secede from the Union, with the Civil War as a consequence. This volume relates, as has never before been related, the origin and progress of this memorable struggle in the councils of the nation, and is remarkable, not alone for its fulness, but for the fairness of the narration."—W. W. Henry, in the Richmond, Va., Dispatch.

Introduction to the Study of North American Archæology. By Prof. Cyrus Thomas, U. S. Bureau of American Ethnology. The book has been prepared with a view of presenting in the briefest possible compass a summary of the subject, bringing the work up to date, and in a form best adapted to the use of the general reader and student. 108 illustrations. 8vo, buckram, cloth $2 00

"The Bivouac of the Dead" and Its Author. By George W. Ranck. 1 vol., 16mo, cloth extra.....$1 00

"On Fame's eternal camping-ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And Glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead."

The whole story of the poem is given, with a biography of the soldier-poet, compiled from family papers. This well-known lyric was a favorite of Grant, Lee, and Gladstone, and it has been styled "the finest martial elegy in existence."

THE BAKER & TAYLOR CO.,

5 and 7 East 16th Street, New York,

CARRY FULL LINES OF ALL THE PUBLISHERS'

Miscellaneous, Standard, and School Stock, and offer the Book Trade of the United States and Canada the advantages of a perfectly equipped and organized Jobbing House in the Greatest American Book Market. The most favorable market in which to purchase is that where the transactions are most frequent and on the largest scale, and where the producers of, and dealers in, any given article are most numerous. Of the one hundred and seventy-five book-publishers in the United States one hundred and twenty-five are either located in New York or have agencies with representative lines there. None is entirely unrepresented. No general order for books can possibly be completely filled without waiting at some point for a portion of it to be ordered and shipped from New York. The best thing to do with such an order is to send it straight to New York in the first instance. It is probable that it can be filled there at once; if it cannot be, then the "shorts" can be got together for shipment more quickly in New York than at any other point in the country; it is, in fact, the centre of the country's book business.
